

NORTH POCONO INVITATIONAL SCIENCE OLYMPIAD COMPETITION

Weather Plan

Since this Invitational Tournament is held in the middle of winter in the Northeast US, there is a chance that we may have to delay or cancel the event due to inclement weather beyond our control. Every effort will be made to still hold the tournament on the scheduled day. If snowed out, an attempt will be made to run the event the following day, but since it requires the participation of many teams running the events, this may not be possible. In such cases, teams running events will be required to send in electronic copies of their exam, answer key, or scoring sheet to the tournament organizer no later than (3) days following the tournament. These files will be compiled and the sample exams will be made available to all of the registered teams via a secure, web-accessible folder.

Any team that does not provide a copy of their exam may be banned from attending future North Pocono Invitationals.

Due to the nature of one-time use supplies generated for and organization of the tournament, the registration fees are non-refundable. However, access to the sample tests and answer keys will prove to be quite valuable to your team for the season.
